YESTERDAY

yesterday, there was a collision in heaven, and one of us soaked in a sea of confusion before falling-falling from the azure sky .
you cried and clung to the hem of my purple pleated skirt,
the one you said could blend with the horizon at sunset.
but I unfurled your silky-soft fingers, silky like dew-kissed sunflower petals and watched you plummet.

once upon a time, I thought we could substitute
our fingerprints and the world would be oblivious.
was it on thursday that we smiled our knowing smile?
what's happened to us since?
maybe the halcyons gliding across the cerulean sky knew.
maybe the cumulous clouds murmured our secrets.
maybe they knew.
maybe they're not as benign as they sing.

Calabash: A Journal of Caribbean Arts and Letters is an international literary journal dedicated to publishing works encompassing, but not limited to, the Anglophone, Francophone, Hispanophone and Dutch-speaking Caribbean. The Journal is especially dedicated to presenting the arts and letters of those communities that have long been under-represented within the creative discourse of the region, among them: Aruba and the Netherlands Antilles, Maroon societies, and the Asian and Amerindian societies of the region. Calabash has a strong visual arts component.
