Hi,

The grades for exam 1 are posted in the leftmost glass display case across the hallway from the chemistry department office (1001 Silver). An answer key for the exam has been posted alongside the grades. You should look at the answer key before attending recitation this coming week. You will be receiving your exam paper back in recitation and you will be better able to interpret the grading if you have viewed the key.

The average grade for the exam is 74.4 and the median grade is 77.5. The scores range from 14.5 to 99.0. Some people will be thinking about withdrawing from the course, others may feel that they have done so well that they can slack off in their efforts. I strongly suggest that EVERYONE attend the lecture this Tuesday because I will discuss how this exam will affect your course grade. No one should withdraw, and certainly no one should slack off, until you have heard what I have to say. However, I will say it in lecture on Tuesday and I will not be inclined to repeat it. We will also discuss chemistry on Tuesday, and that will definitely make it worthwhile to be there!

The posted grades are listed by the last five (5) digits of your NYU ID number (and with your recitation section number).

Have a nice weekend!
