Course Description
This course examines German theater of the twentieth century, from Expressionism to contemporary postdramatic forms of writing and performance. The course will first offer an overview of German theater traditions before 1900 and will then engage in analyzing specific developments in German theater starting with Max Reinhardt and his work at the Deutsches Theater Berlin. Other case studies will focus on Brecht’s epic theater, theater during the Third Reich, postwar theater trends in East and West Germany, and current developments in reunified Germany. Not only will we closely read relevant plays and theory by the theater makers of these respective periods, but we will also explore aesthetics and performance issues as they have changed over time. As the involved practice of dramaturgy in Germany has greatly influenced theatrical developments, we will investigate this major aspect of theatrical work in Germany as a contribution to world theater and study how the extensive debate of ideas is being concretely realized in the theater through the choices being made in a production. An integral part of the course will include visits to Berlin theaters, attending performances, which we will analyze in class, and engaging in discussions with contemporary theater makers in Berlin.
Course Objective
The aim of this course is to provide an introduction to some central and formative approaches to theater theory and practice in Germany. As this course takes literary, theater historical, and performance theoretical perspectives into account, our examination strives to open up new paths of inquiry, which will illuminate the issues at hand.

Assessment Components
Students are expected to attend all sessions, do the readings, participate in discussions, and complete written assignments. Student performance will be evaluated on the basis of four components: class participation, 5 reading responses, a class presentation, a midterm essay, and a final argumentative writing assignment.

1. Class Participation 10%
2. Reading Responses 20%
3. Class Presentation 10%
4. Writing assignment I: Midterm 20%
5. Writing assignment II: Critical Essay 40%

(1) Participation in discussions constitutes an important component of course activities and makes up a significant portion of student grades. You will have the opportunity to further explore the course readings, seek clarification, express your views, and engage in peer discussion.

(2) In order to prepare for discussion in class and develop relevant writing skills, students are required to submit 10 reading responses (ca. 250 words) on specific texts and questions at the designated deadline by uploading them to NYU Classes. These reading responses, each counting 2% towards the final grade, serve to develop a habit of critical engagement with the texts and regular writing practice. They can also help to identify your research interests early on.

(3) Furthermore, students will convey their negotiations of a reading by giving one in-class presentation of 10 minutes in the style of a short conference paper, which incorporates exemplary close readings of selected passages and the development of critical discussion questions for the seminar.

(4) Students will write a midterm paper (5 pages), based on discussion questions, which will be distributed two weeks before the deadline.

(5) Finally, students will write a critical essay (12 – 15 pages) on a topic of their choosing. This work can be an extension of the midterm paper but demands argumentative writing and critical engagement with secondary sources. Please arrange to meet with Prof. Dettmer at the earliest opportunity to discuss your research interests and final project.

Failure to submit or fulfill any required component may result in failure of the class, regardless of grades achieved in other assignments.

Assessment Expectations

Grade A: The student makes excellent use of empirical and theoretical material and offers well-structured arguments in his/her work. The student writes comprehensive essays / answers to exam questions and his/her work shows strong evidence of critical thought and extensive reading.

Grade B: The candidate shows a good understanding of the problem and has demonstrated the ability to formulate and execute a coherent research strategy.
Grade C: The work is acceptable and shows a basic grasp of the research problem. However, the work fails to organize findings coherently and is in need of improvement.

Grade D: The work passes because some relevant points are made. However, there may be a problem of poor definition, lack of critical awareness, poor research.

Grade F: The work shows that the research problem is not understood; there is little or no critical awareness and the research is clearly negligible.

Grade Conversion

Your lecturer may use one of the following scales of numerical equivalents to letter grades:

- $B+ = 87-89$
- $C+ = 77-79$
- $D+ = 67-69$
- $F = 	ext{below 65}$

- $A = 90-100$
- $B = 84-86$
- $C = 74-76$
- $D = 65-66$

Alternatively:

- $A = 4.0$
- $A- = 3.7$
- $B+ = 3.3$
- $B = 3.0$
- $B- = 2.7$
- $C+ = 2.3$
- $C = 2.0$
- $C- = 1.7$
- $D+ = 1.3$
- $D = 1.0$
- $F = 0.0$

Attendance Policy

Participation in all classes is essential for your academic success, especially in courses that meet only once per week. Your attendance in both content and language courses is required and will be checked at each class meeting. As soon as it becomes clear that you cannot attend a class, you must inform your professor by e-mail immediately (i.e. before the start of your class). Absences are only excused if they are due to illness, religious observance or emergencies. Your professor or NYU Berlin's administration may ask you to present a doctor's note or an exceptional permission from NYU Berlin's Director or Wellness Counselor as proof. Emergencies or other exceptional circumstances must be presented to the Director. Doctor's notes need to be submitted to the Academics Office, who will inform your professors. Doctor's notes need to be from a local doctor and carry a signature and a stamp. If you want the reasons for your absence to be treated confidentially, please approach NYU Berlin's Director or Wellness Counselor.

Unexcused absences affect students' grades: In content courses each unexcused absence (equaling one week's worth of classes) leads to a deduction of 2% of the overall grade and may negatively affect your class participation grade. In German Language classes two or three (consecutive or non-consecutive) unexcused absences (equaling one week's worth of classes) lead to a 2% deduction of the overall grade. Three unexcused absences in one content course and five unexcused absences in your German language course may lead to a Fail in that course. Furthermore, your professor is entitled to deduct points for frequent late arrival or late arrival back from in-class breaks. Being more than 15 minutes late counts as an unexcused absence. Please note that for classes involving a field trip, transportation difficulties are never grounds for an excused absence. It is the student’s responsibility to arrive in time at the announced meeting point.
Exams, tests and quizzes, deadlines, and oral presentations that are missed due to illness always require a doctor's note as documentation. It is the student's responsibility to produce this doctor's note and submit it to the Academics Office; until this doctor's note is produced the missed assessment is graded with an F and no make-up assessment is scheduled. In content classes, an F in one assignment may lead to failure of the entire class.

Attendance Rules on Religious Holidays
Members of any religious group may, without penalty, excuse themselves from classes when required in compliance with their religious obligations. Students who anticipate being absent due to religious observance should notify their lecturer AND NYU Berlin's Academics Office in writing via e-mail one week in advance. If examinations or assignment deadlines are scheduled on the day the student will be absent, the Academics Office will schedule a make-up examination or extend the deadline for assignments. Please note that an absence is only excused for the holiday but not for any days of travel that may come before and/or after the holiday. See also http://www.nyu.edu/about/policies-guidelines-compliance/policies-and-guidelines/university-calendar-policy-on-religious-holidays.html

Late Submission of Work
(1) Written work due in class must be submitted during the class time to the professor.

(2) Late work should be submitted in person to the lecturer or to the Academics Office, who will write on the essay or other work the date and time of submission, in the presence of the student. Another member of the administrative staff may also personally accept the work, and will write the date and time of submission on the work, as above.

(3) Work submitted late receives a penalty of 2 points on the 100 point scale for each day it is late (excluding weekends and public or religious holidays), unless an extension has been approved (with a doctor's note or by approval of NYU Berlin's administration), in which case the 2 points per day deductions start counting from the day the extended deadline has passed.

(4) Without an approved extension, written work submitted more than 5 days (excluding weekends and public or religious holidays) following the submission date receives an F.

(5) End of semester essays must be submitted on time.

(6) Students who are late for a written exam have no automatic right to take extra time or to write the exam on another day.

(7) Please remember that university computers do not keep your essays - you must save them elsewhere. Having lost parts of your essay on the university computer is no excuse for a late submission.

Provisions for Students with Disabilities
Academic accommodations are available for students with documented disabilities. Please contact the Moses Center for Students with Disabilities at 212-998-4980 or see their website http://www.nyu.edu/life/safety-health-andwellness/students-with-disabilities.html for further information.

Plagiarism Policy
The presentation of another person’s words, ideas, judgment, images or data as though they were your own, whether intentionally or unintentionally, constitutes an act of plagiarism. Proper referencing of your sources avoids plagiarism (see as one possible help the NYU library guide to referencing styles: http://nyu.libguides.com/citations).

NYU Berlin takes plagiarism very seriously; penalties follow and may exceed those set out by your home school. Your lecturer may ask you to sign a declaration of authorship form.

It is also an offense to submit work for assignments from two different courses that is substantially the same (be it oral presentations or written work). If there is an overlap of the subject of your assignment with one that you produced for another course (either in the current or any previous semester), you MUST inform your professor.

Internet Research Guidelines
To be discussed in class.
SCHEDULE OF TOPICS AND READINGS

Session 1 – 1 Feb 2017: Introduction (both sections: 9:30am – 12:15pm)
We will discuss the objectives and the organization of the seminar. Then we will take a look at German theater traditions before 1900 and the recurrent shifts in dramaturgical viewpoints, as we develop questions to guide us through the semester.

1900 – 1945

Session 2 – 8 Feb 2017: Expressionism
This session will focus on the development of Expressionism in the German theatre scene. Plays by Wedekind and Kokoschka will serve as the literary foundation before we investigate the role of Max Reinhardt and the Deutsches Theater Berlin for this new aesthetic.
- Frank Wedekind. Spring Awakening (1891/1906) [on loan from NYU Berlin]
- Oskar Kokoschka. Murderer, Hope of Women (1909) [course reader/electronic resource]

Session 3 – 15 Feb 2017: Epic Theatre
We will discuss Bertolt Brecht’s development of Epic Theatre, taking into account the groundbreaking work by Erwin Piscator and the critical Marxist view of Walter Benjamin. We will analyze Brecht’s Threepenny Opera in detail.

Theater! – 21 Feb 2017: Terror at Deutsches Theater Berlin, 7.30pm – 10pm
We will visit this recent production based on a text by Ferdinand von Schirach, which is presented with English surtitles.

Session 4 – 22 Feb 2017: Theater during the Third Reich: Conformism and Exile
In this session, we will take a twofold look at theater practitioners during the Third Reich: those who remained in Germany and participated in theater fitting the ideology of National Socialism, like Gustaf Gründgens, and those who had to leave Germany and tried to maintain an alternative German theater in exile, like Bertolt Brecht.
Session 5 – 1 Mar 2017: Zero Hour Theater
During the immediate aftermath of World War II, artists in Germany developed an aesthetic of the “Zero Hour” or “Rubble Art”, which sought for a fresh start after the horrors of war while taking into account the various forms of destruction. We will analyze the aesthetic outlook of these works in conjunction with theories of trauma.

- Wolfgang Borchert. The Man Outside (1947)

Session 6 – 8 Mar 2017: Excursion to the Brecht-Weigel-Gedenkstätte and the Dorotheenstädtischer Friedhof
In this session, we will visit the apartments of Bertolt Brecht’s and Helene Weigel’s at Chausseeestraße to continue our study of their lives and work at the historical site. We will complement the excursion with a walk across the cemetery next door, which is the resting place for many famous Berliners, and a discussion with Prof. Holger Teschke.

Midterm is due in hard copy on site!

Spring Break – 15 Mar 2017: no class

Session 7 – 22 Mar 2017: Theater in the GDR I (Cultural Production & Socialist Realism)
With the founding of the two German nation states in 1949, two distinctive approaches to theater were established. In this session, we will begin our focus on the theater scene in East Germany, which in its beginnings was shaped by Bertolt Brecht and his work at the Berliner Ensemble and by the state policies regarding cultural production, the aesthetic of Socialist Realism, and a complex system of control and censorship. For the next three sessions, we engage with the work of Heiner Müller, whose varied career serves as a fascinating case study for the development of the GDR theater culture.
Session 8 – 29 Mar 2017: Theater in the GDR II (Revolution I)
As the political climate in the GDR dictated content and form of all art, theater makers were forced to develop strategies to critically engage their audience without jeopardizing their lives, by reworking classical material, for instance. Heiner Müller also reexamined Brecht's legacy for theater as such and thus came to develop a new perspective on Brecht's Lehrstücke.

- Bertolt Brecht. The Decision (1930) [course reader / electronic resource]

Session 9 – Make-Up Day: Friday, 31 Mar 2017: Theater in the GDR III (Revolution II)
As the system of the GDR began to fail, more and more artists left for the West. Writers like Christa Wolf and Heiner Müller remained in the GDR in order to advocate a reform of the state by exploring new and avant-garde forms of expression. We will investigate the later aesthetics of Heiner Müller, both as a playwright and a director, whose project included to secure theater as a venue for public discourse. We will also discuss the legacy of the GDR theater culture.

F.I.N.D. at Schaubühne – 5 Apr 2017: no class
Recitation 2: We will join Recitation 1, who will participate in F.I.N.D.plus that week, for an evening performance at Schaubühne during the week. An introductory lecture to F.I.N.D., held by Christoph Buchegger, will be held before the performance at the Schaubühne. The exact date and time will be distributed as soon as they become available.
Session 10 – 12 Apr 2017: Theater in the FRG I (Documentary Theater / Theater about the Holocaust)
In this session, we will shift our focus to study the developments in the theater scene in West Germany after World War II. Documentary Theater became a significant form, which particularly shared in the national project of Vergangenheitsbewältigung (“coming to terms with the past”) regarding Third Reich, World War II, and the Holocaust. We will also continue our discussion of theories of trauma as specific to theatrical forms.
- Peter Weiss. The Investigation (1965)

Session 11 – 19 Apr 2017: Theater in the FRG II (Postmodern Tendencies I)
We will continue our discussion of West German theater with an investigation of the student movement of 1968 and its repercussions for the theatre as a public venue of critical engagement with the status quo. We will analyze the impact of playwright Peter Handke and director Claus Peymann on the re-shaping of the theater culture.
- Peter Handke. Kaspar (1967)

Session 12 – 26 Apr 2017: Theater in the FRG III (Postmodern Tendencies II)
As theater in West Germany increasingly deals with questions of freedom, gender, and the market place in the light of the Cold War, it also looks for alternative modes to organize itself, free of the traditional conventions of the subsidized theater. In this respect, director Peter Stein and his project of a democratic co-management at Die Schaubühne Berlin revolutionize theater practices.
- Botho Strauß. Big and Small (1978) [course reader / electronic resource]

1990 – 2017

Session 13 – 3 May 2017: Postdramatic Theater
After the fall of the wall in 1989, German theater intensified its search for new forms, which would adequately represent the chaos of possibilities in a post-ideological world. Leaving traditional dramatic structures behind, playwrights, like Elfriede Jelinek, started to construct texts that would work against the institution of the theater, while directors, like Einar Schleef, sought to destabilize established ways of viewing.

Recommended Extra-Curricular Event – 6 May 2017: Brecht-Weigel-Haus in Buckow

Join Prof. Dettmer for a day trip into the Märkische Schweiz to visit the summer residence of Bertolt Brecht’s and Helene Weigel’s. Space for this trip is limited, so please sign up on the Upcoming Events Board at the AC. More detailed information will be made available closer to the date.

Session 14 – 10 May 2017: Theater & Performance

In this session, we will examine the growing importance of physical performance for contemporary theater by looking at the work of Falk Richter, who creates and produces at Berlin’s Schaubühne. Furthermore, we will investigate how theater itself becomes the subject of theater and is scrutinized in its role as a public space. While writer and director René Pollesch evokes a meta-theater of theory and cultural critique, Frank Castorf at the Volksbühne Berlin continues his quest to destroy the status quo by destroying traditional notions of theatre. This includes, for both theater makers, an intensive use of other media on the stage.

Session 15 – 17 May 2017: Résumé

In our last session, we will review the milestones of this semester, as well as briefly look at the final projects.

Final Writing Assignment Due, incl. short in-class presentation of the final project
Classroom Etiquette
The use of laptops, tablets, and cell phones in the classroom is not permitted. Students may not eat during class, except during breaks. Drinks, including coffee and tea, are fine.

Required Co-Curricular Activities
We will visit three productions at theaters in Berlin, which are part of class time and thus mandatory. The reading response on dates following these theater visits may address these productions; we will also discuss the performances in class. Due to the special repertory scheduling system in German theaters, all dates are not yet set but will be made known to the class as soon as they become available. NYU Berlin will cover the ticket costs.

Suggested Co-Curricular Activities
As the theater and arts scene in Berlin is very diverse and as ticket prices are comparatively cheap when you are using your student ID at the box offices, you are encouraged to explore the Berlin theater world on your own. Please refer to the Berlin Theater Guide for further information. NYU Berlin also offers a day trip to the summer residence of Bertolt Brecht’s and Helene Weigel’s on Saturday, 6 May, which comes highly recommended. You will need to sign up on the Upcoming Events board at the Academic Center, as space for this trip will be limited.

Your Lecturer
Katrin Dettmer is the Arts Coordinator at NYU Berlin. She received her Ph.D. in German Studies from Brown University in 2012. Since then she has taught for Brown University and Leuphana Universität Lüneburg, where she taught German Studies and Theatre Arts with a special focus on dramaturgy. In her dissertation on East-German playwright Heiner Müller, entitled The Touch of the Dead, Katrin negotiates the dynamics between history and performance in both Müller’s writing and his stage work. Her research focuses on 20th and 21st century German literature; GDR literature and intellectual life; literatures of trauma, memory, and remembrance; Theater and Performance Studies; Media Studies; intellectual history; and aesthetics of presence. In addition to her academic work, Katrin has also been working as a dramaturg for a variety of productions, both in the US and in Germany. Her latest production in cooperation with lunatiks produktion and Theater Lüneburg, Senkungen, is a devised piece based on extensive regional research and had its world premiere in Lüneburg in February 2016.
