YOUR INVESTMENT CHOICES

For more information about associated investment risks, see the GLOSSARY OF TYPES OF RISK following the account and fund descriptions.

A guaranteed annuity is backed by an insurance company's claims-paying ability, and guarantees principal and a specified minimum interest rate. It may also offer the opportunity for additional amounts in excess of the guaranteed rate.

A variable annuity is a contract that provides future payments, usually at retirement. Future payments depend on the performance of the portfolio's securities.

A mutual fund is a type of investment in which the money of many investors is pooled together to buy a portfolio of different securities. The fund is managed by professional(s) who invest in stocks, bonds, options, money market instruments or other securities.

An expense ratio is the amount that investors pay for management of a mutual fund or variable annuity. The amount is expressed as a percentage of the fund or account's average net assets.

There are inherent risks in investing in securities. Please be sure to read carefully the notes that appear at the end of this section for details about the securities listed here.

All other withdrawals and all transfers to the Real Estate Account or to CREF must be spread over a ten-year period (five years for withdrawals after termination of employment).

33 In California, the TIAA Real Estate Account is available, but not through all employer-sponsored plans. Please contact us to determine if your employer's plan can accept investments into the account.

90 Annuities are issued by Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association (TIAA), New York, NY.

101 All displayed performance and statistical data have been compiled by TIAA-CREF.

105 Annuities are designed for retirement savings or for other long-term goals. They offer several payment options, including lifetime income. Payments from TIAA and CREF variable annuities are not guaranteed, and the payment amounts will rise or fall depending on investment returns.

GLOSSARY

OF TYPES OF RISK

ASSET ALLOCATION RISK—Asset allocation risk is the risk that a fund or account that invests in other funds or accounts may not be able to invest according to its target allocations due to fluctuations in the value of the underlying funds or accounts, and that the selection of underlying funds or accounts and the allocations among them will result in the fund or account's underperformance versus similar funds or accounts or will cause an investor to lose money.

CALL RISK—Call risk is the risk that during periods of declining interest rates, an issuer of a bond may "call" (i.e., redeem) a high-yielding obligation before its maturity date. This often creates an unanticipated capital gain liability and requires the fund or account to reinvest the proceeds at the lower prevailing interest rate.

COMPANY RISK (OFTEN CALLED FINANCIAL RISK)—Company risk is the risk that the earnings prospects and overall financial position of the issuer of a security will deteriorate, causing a decline in the security's value over short or extended periods of time.

CREDIT RISK (A TYPE OF COMPANY RISK)—Credit risk (a type of company risk) is the risk that a decline in a company's overall financial soundness may make it unable to pay principal and interest on bonds when due.

EXTENSION RISK—Extension risk is the risk of decline in value for certain fixed-income securities because principal payments are not made as early as possible.

FOREIGN INVESTMENT RISKS—Foreign investment risks are the risks of investing in securities of foreign issuers, in securities or contracts traded on foreign exchanges or in foreign markets, or in securities or contracts payable in foreign currency. Foreign investing involves special risks, including erratic market conditions, economic and political instability, and fluctuations in currency exchange rates. These investment risks may be magnified in emerging markets.

GROWTH INVESTING RISKS—Growth investing risks include the risk that, due to their relatively high valuations, growth stocks will be more volatile than value stocks. In addition, because the value of growth companies is generally a function of their expected earnings growth, there is a risk that such earnings growth may not occur or cannot be sustained.

ILLIQUID SECURITY RISK—Illiquid security risk is the risk that investments in illiquid securities may be difficult to sell for their fair market value.

INCOME VOLATILITY RISK—Income volatility risk is the risk that the level of current income from a portfolio of fixed-income securities may decline in certain interest-rate environments.

INDEX RISK—Index risk is the risk that the performance of a fund or account will not match the performance of its index for any period of time. Although a fund or account attempts to closely track the investment performance of the index, the fund or account may not duplicate the composition of this index. In addition, its performance, unlike that of its index, is affected by investment and other operating expenses.

INTEREST RATE RISK—Interest-rate risk (a type of market risk) is the risk that bond prices or the income of a fund or account may decline if interest rates change.

LARGE-CAP RISK—Large-cap risk is the risk that, by focusing on investments in securities of larger companies, a fund or account may have fewer opportunities to identify securities that the market misprices. In addition, larger companies may grow more slowly than the economy as a whole or not at all.

MARKET RISK—Market risk is the risk that the price of securities may decline in response to general market and economic conditions or events.

MID-CAP RISK—Mid-cap risk is the risk that the securities of medium-sized companies will be more volatile than those of larger companies. In addition, the securities of medium-sized companies may be harder to buy or sell than those of larger, more established, companies.

PREPAYMENT AND EXTENSION RISK—Prepayment and extension risk is the risk of a decline for certain fixed-income securities that allow for the early prepayment of principal, and the risk that a fund or account's income will decline as a result of the prepayment.

REAL ESTATE INVESTING RISKS—Real estate investing risks are the risks associated with real estate ownership, including fluctuations in property values, higher expenses or lower income than expected, and potential environmental problems and liability.

REAL ESTATE SECURITIES RISK—Real estate securities risk is the risk that a fund that concentrates its investments in real estate securities and holds securities of relatively few issuers may experience greater fluctuations in value and be subject to a greater risk of loss than other mutual funds.

REORGANIZATION RISK—Reorganization risk is the risk that stocks of companies involved in reorganizations and other special situations can involve more risk than ordinary securities. Accordingly, the performance of a fund or account that invests in such companies is often more volatile than the performance of the overall stock market, and the fund or account could significantly outperform or underperform the stock market during any particular period.

GLOSSARY

OF TYPES OF RISK

RISK OF SOCIALLY SCREENED INVESTING—Risk of socially screened investing is the possibility that funds or accounts whose social screens exclude some investments may not be able to take advantage of the same opportunities or market trends as funds or accounts that do not use such criteria.

RISKS FOR INFLATION-INDEXED BONDS—Risks of inflation-indexed bonds include the risk that market values of inflation-indexed bonds can be affected by changes in investors' inflation expectations or changes in "real" rates of interest (i.e., a security's return above the inflation rate). Also, the inflation index that a bond is intended to track may not accurately reflect the true rate of inflation. If the market perceives that an index does not accurately reflect inflation, the market value of inflation-indexed bonds could be adversely affected. In addition, an investment in a fund or account that invests in inflation-indexed bonds is subject to certain special tax considerations.

SMALL-CAP RISK—Small-cap risk is the risk that the securities of smaller companies may experience steeper fluctuations in price than those of larger companies. These securities may also have to be sold at a discount from their current market prices or in small lots over an extended period.

SMALL-CAP/MID-CAP RISK—Small-cap/mid-cap risk is the risk that smaller company securities may experience steeper fluctuations in price than the securities of larger companies. They may also have to be sold at a discount from their current market prices or in small lots over an extended period, since they may be harder to sell than larger-cap securities.

STYLE RISK—Style risk is the risk that a fund or account's growth investing or value investing style may be out of favor in the marketplace for various periods of time.

VALUE INVESTING RISKS—Value investing risks are the risks that (1) the issuer's potential business prospects may not be realized; (2) the securities' potential values may never be recognized by the market; and (3) due to unanticipated problems associated with the issuer or industry, the securities were appropriately priced (or overpriced) when acquired.
