New Billy The Kid At Ritch

The most famous western outlaw of them all, William Bonney, is back in the saddle as Billy The Kid Wanted, in an action-packed epic, "Billy The Kid Wanted," which opens this week on an enthusiastic audience on both sides of the local theater. But Baker Crabbe as a western star.

In the title role, Crabbe gives a forceful portrayal of the trigger-inspired young outlaw, on one of the few occasions when he left his mark on the law, and to the law.

Big, handsome, and ever-willing to fight, Crabbe should go on as a long way as a western star. Camera close-ups reveal that he personally performed all of the stunt work required in the film, and some of the fighting scenes, are the best that have ever graced the local screen.

Equally good at fast gun-slinging and daring riding, Crabbe just about walks away with the film, despite the efforts of his partners. Dave O'Brien, Al St. John and Al St. John. If he keeps up the pace of his previous work he will be a top contender to be one of the leading stars of the picture. Crabbe will be crowding the top cowboy star in the business before many months have passed.

Cowboy On Water

Dave O'Brien, who is featured with Baker Crabbe and Al St. John in front of the Releasing Corporation's "Billy The Kid Wanted," is referred to as the ex-going cowboy, because most of his time between films, is spent aboard his thirty-foot fast power cruiser. The case includes Glenn Strange, Charles King, Slim Whicker, Chet Sherwood, Joe Newfield, Bud Baker and Frank Bles. Sheriff Kent directed. Sigmund Neufeld produced.

BUSTER CRABBE PROVES HE'S TOP NOTCH COWBOY
CHAMPION SWIMMER RIDES AND SHOOTS WITH SKILL

At last... the ideal cowboy story. He is rugged Buster Crabbe, who makes his screen debut as a sagebrush champion in P.R.C.'s "Billy The Kid Wanted," an action thriller which opened at this theater.

Billy, who first gained fame as an Olympic swimming champion, is probably the best athlete in western pictures, and director Sherman Scott had no doubt about his selection for the title role in "Billy The Kid Wanted."

Buster Crabbe is one of the finest skiers in the motion picture industry, and he is also an expert rifle shot. He has been a member of the U.S. Olympic team and has won many championships.

Buster was born in Los Angeles, California, and was raised in the swimming pool. He started his swimming career at the age of seven and has been a competitive swimmer ever since. He attended the University of Southern California and majored in swimming.

Buster is also an expert on horseback. He has won many equestrian awards and has been a member of the U.S. Olympic equestrian team. He has also won many championships in horseback riding.

Buster is currently enrolled in motion pictures and has appeared in several westerns and action pictures. He is also a member of the Screen Actors Guild and the Screen Directors Guild.

BUSTER WAS FAST ON THE DRAW

(Buster) He shot first, and asked questions afterward. He is, in fact, probably one of the finest one-line descriptions of the most famous outlaw of the Old West, William Bonney, known and length the breadth of the land to the notorious "Billy The Kid."

For years, in成无数的 motion pictures pictures of both talking and silent film, Billy returns to the screens of the world in the person of Buster Crabbe as "Billy The Kid Wanted" which begins a new era in the Motion Picture. Light on his first, with the fastest draw and the fastest temper ever seen, shooter his name in the West, Billy was used to kill in an honest sort of way. But the West had not yet been convinced that Billy was the real thing, and his position as a rider was not yet secure. His name was known, but not his face.

In "Billy The Kid Wanted" the famous outlaw comes to the West, and of course we are not exactly sure if he was just another rider along the trail, or another variant of the long line of cowboys and gunslingers. We do know that he has a strong connection with the film, and that his name is written in large letters on the screen.

Sigmund Neufeld produced.

Buster Crabbe, the champion swimmer who captivated the uncharted field of dramatics, appears in "Billy The Kid Wanted," first in a new series of six Producers Releasing Corporation westerns, now playing at the Theater.

Holder of sixteen world's records and thirty-five national championships, the Olympic star of 1932 and 1936, was signed after the latter games by Paramount Pictures, although he had no previous experience in the theater. Crabbe was starred in "King of the Kings" and "The Deserter," and he is currently under contract to Paramount's Famous Studio. In his latest appearance, the swimmer makes a comeback in the picture, which is directed by Sigmund Neufeld.

BUSTER CRABBE HAS SEEN PLENTY OF ACTION

Office boy, lifeguard, and professional farmer, life-insurance salesman dry goods salesman, Olympic swimming champion and movie actor — all these jobs contributed to the career of Buster Crabbe who plays the title role in "Billy The Kid Wanted," due at the Theatre.

California was the birthplace of the handsome six-footer, and his first job was that of lifeguard, where he developed the prowess which was later to win him fame in the Olympic Games. Shortly after the Olympics of 1932, when he was signed by Paramount for the leading role in "King of The Kings," he proved his versatility by turning into a fan favorite.

For the past eighteen months, Crabbe has been on tour with his own swimming troupe, and only recently returned to Hollywood in the star of "Jungle Man," and "The Billie The Kid" series. In this role, he is a star in his own right, and Crabbe was starred in "King of the Kings" and "The Deserter," and he is currently under contract to Paramount's Famous Studio.

In "Billy The Kid Wanted," he takes on the role of a lifeguard, working in the swimmers pool, and setting an example for the audience.

Other roles in the cast are Al St. John, Olave O'Brien, Glenn Strange, Charlie King and Chet Sherwood. Sherman Scott directed.

PROGRAM SHORTS

CHARLES KING and GLENN STRANGE, who play rival gang leaders in P.R.C.'s "Billy The Kid Wanted," were back at the Theater for the opening of the film. They are featured in the early days of the silent screen. Dave O'Brien has a featured role. Sigmund Neufeld produced.

AL ST. JOHN, who has the comedy lead in P.R.C.'s "Billy The Kid Wanted," now Buster Crabbe star, also made his film career debut at the Theater.

SHERMAN SCOTT, who directed P.R.C.'s "Billy The Kid Wanted," Buster Crabbe star, also made his film debut at the Theater.

Trend To Trios

(Advance)
Time was, when the average went to be a cowboy star. Today, there are three leading stars of the genre, and one of them is a showman who has become a legend in his own time, a prominent exception, rather than the common rule. The trend toward trios today, is exemplified by the teaming of Buster Crabbe, Dave O'Brien and Al St. John, for a series of six films, the first of which "Billy the Kid Wanted," is now playing at the . Theatre, and "Three Westerners" is the title of the upcoming series, with three series of western films to be made during the coming season, by two teams, Crabbe, O'Brien and St. John, and Bill Boyd, Leo Powell and Art Davis.

Adams, who has been in the film industry for a number of years, has recently moved to the east coast, where he is currently working as an editor for a major film studio.
