SYNOPSIS
(Not for publication)

Jim (JOHN LUPTON) is the owner of a ranch situated on oil rich land and refuses to sell despite persuasion by his brother Norm (DICK JONES). Della (VALERIE ALLEN) makes a play for Jim hoping to win his affection and the valuable property. When Jim rejects Della's advances she seeks revenge by marrying Norm and lies to Norm about Jim's attempting to rape her. She convinces Norm that Jim is not sane. Norm has Jim committed to a mental institution. Jim manages to overpower a guard and escapes. Shortly thereafter, Norm is found dead in the barn of Jim's house which Norm had taken over. The townsfolk headed by an agitator named Crow, are inflamed and an intense search is underway. Jim manages to elude the would-be lynch mob, and in the meantime Della is found drowned in the well at Jim's farmhouse. Jim is naturally blamed for the deaths of both Norm and Della. The Sheriff discovers that Norm was killed by a horse's hoofs and Della's drowning was accidental, but he is too late to save Jim. The crazed mob has cornered Jim in a cave and bludgeon him with gasoline fire torches. Jim dies a horrible death, his body a flaming torch.
