THE RED TERROR

Synopsis

The Russian Secret Police spell terror and bloodshed, which, during the Russian revolution brought destruction to the wealthy. Through a strange coincidence a girl escapes this scourge and vows to avenge the murder of her parents and relatives. Successively old noble Russian families are exterminated by the Red Revolution. The girl and her hate towards the communists is growing up. She enters the Secret Police as an agent, because this is the only way to find the murderer of her parents. Finally she discovers the man, who is her co-worker and one of the top agents of the Secret Police. The agent falls in love with the girl and she encourages him. He shows her plans he has made to double-cross the Secret Police, including theft of money, fake passport, change of name, etc., as well as a home he has purchased in Normandy. She promises to marry him but instead denounces the deserter to headquarters and the Secret Police kill the agent. Now the chief wants to recompense the girl for her faithful services and invites her to the headquarters in Moscow. The girl tells the chief to his face, that everything she did, she had done out of hate, that she does not want to work anymore for the Secret Police, and that she wants to quit the service. But there is only one way to get out from the Secret Police, death. Therefore, she kills herself before the Secret Police can catch her. The picture concludes with the freeing of the prisoners throughout Europe by the liberating forces of the West.
