

Call for papers!

Anamesa, an interdisciplinary journal exclusively for graduate students is now accepting submissions for the Perception Issue.

NYU graduate students in any department are encouraged to submit essays, fiction, photography, art, poetry, book reviews, and literary translations that examine, interpret, or challenge our understanding of PERCEPTION. Areas of inquiry could include, but are certainly not limited to, literature, international relations, and the sciences.

Submissions may be in any language with an English translation accompanying all non-English texts. All submissions should be 6,000 words or less. For non-fiction submissions, please include a 100-200 word abstract. Please include your department affiliation in your e-mail.

Deadline: October 10, 2008

Email submissions to: anamesa.journal@gmail.com

Anamesa is now searching for an artist or illustrator to create new work based on the essays and fiction that will be part of the Fall 2008 Perception Issue. Please email anamesa.journal@gmail.com to learn more about this opportunity.

Anamesa is a collaborative project produced by the Center of Latin American and Caribbean Studies (CLACS) and the John W. Draper Interdisciplinary Master's Program at New York University.
