Managing Director & Founding Partner

Relief Development Consulting

Jason Spindler is Managing Director and Founding Partner of Relief Development Consulting (RDC, www.reliefconsulting.com). Prior to starting RDC, Jason worked in both the traditional business sector on Wall Street, and the international development sector, working in emerging markets from Peru to India.

As a Reynolds Fellow and law student, Jason worked with a number of leading organizations in the social entrepreneurship sector. He worked briefly with Acumen Fund, a New York based private equity style development fund, as a strategic advisor to one of their portfolio companies. He also worked with InSite New York, a venture capital incubator and strategy consultancy that is a collaboration between NYU's and Columbia's Business and Law Schools.

Jason has also worked at Citigroup's Debt Capital Markets and Investment Recovery Groups, Questor Management Partners of AlixPartners, LLC and as a consultant for Ashoka's Law for All Initiative in New Delhi. He also volunteered with the Peace Corps as a Business and Economic Development Volunteer in the Peruvian Highlands. While in Peru, he served as the Interim-Director and advisor to the Board of Directors of Asociacion Civil Tierra, an internationally funded NGO focused on developing local agro-industrial businesses.

Jason graduated from the University of Texas at Austin with degrees in Finance and Economics.
