Vanessa Jackson is convinced that improving the public education system is crucial to the future economic, political and cultural well-being of an increasingly diverse U.S. Her goal is to move this agenda further by enabling a system that nurtures equal opportunity, closes the achievement and income gaps, witnesses an end to poverty and allows the U.S to maintain its position of influence on the global stage. She believes this can be accomplished with effective, early and continuing public education.