Calabash
A JOURNAL OF CARIBBEAN ARTS AND LETTERS

Volume 2, Number 2: Summer/Fall 2003

Information about this work:

Pancho Villa’s Daughter
By: MAGGIE HARRIS
Start Page: 42
URL: http://library.nyu.edu/calabash/vol2iss2/0202042.pdf

Calabash: A Journal of Caribbean Arts and Letters is an international literary journal dedicated to publishing works encompassing, but not limited to, the Anglophone, Francophone, Hispanophone and Dutch-speaking Caribbean. The Journal is especially dedicated to presenting the arts and letters of those communities that have long been under-represented within the creative discourse of the region, among them: Aruba and the Netherlands Antilles, Maroon societies, and the Asian and Amerindian societies of the region. Calabash has a strong visual arts component.

Calabash is published by New York University. Please contact the publisher for further permissions regarding the use of this work. Publisher information may be obtained at: http://library.nyu.edu/calabash/about.html

Calabash: A Journal of Caribbean Arts and Letters © 2003 New York University
Maggie Harris

PANCHO VILLA’S DAUGHTER

Pancho Villa’s daughter fresh from a continent where blood dries quickly on the plains young as a suckling spruce old as Mayans scatters Euros now stacks them neatly in numerical order behind a glass window through eyes as grey as the rain.

You’d never know it, behind that glass partition with its beech trim and bronzed name-plate sits a daughter of the plains trading dollars for escudos efficiently advising on Tessas, ISAs blue chip files and overseas investments.

The South London accent wavers on a trade-wind ushered briskly through the swing doors, as dry as the yucca straining for a square of blue.

But, don’t talk to her of open spaces of savannahs rippling like land eels in the heat; don’t talk to her of vaqueros voiceless as vagrants with 1969 on a movie screen.

Her face will shut as swiftly as a time-lock, will look past you
as cold as morning rain.