ALLYSHIP

Allies focus on interpersonal interactions.

Allyship is heavy on talk.

Ally work risks very little – at most, we deal with social discomfort.

Allies are ‘helping’ or ‘standing up for’ someone who is ‘disadvantaged.’

Allyship is a ‘gift.’

Civility is highly prized in allyship.

Ally work generally does not redistribute resources.

In solidarity, we recognize the destructiveness of oppression to all of humanity. We acknowledge that our collective well-being is interwoven.

Solidarity work is often quieter, deeper, and occurring behind the scenes.

Acts of solidarity work to dismantle structures and institutions.

Solidarity work may require us to give up power and/or to risk our physical safety, our jobs, our secure place in any social hierarchy, our friendships, and family relationships.

Solidarity is talk and action.

Solidarity work is often enacted by, or in collaboration with, marginalized people.

Solidarity is a responsibility.

Hard truths, conflict, and messy disagreements are integral to solidarity work.

Solidarity means that we intentionally work to redistribute the ill-gotten gains of systemic oppression—jobs, schools, neighborhoods, housing, healthcare, and capital.
