Degree Report

This is the degree progress report; it will show the date it was last generated. Changes which have taken place since this was last created such as: New or changed Enrollment, Transfer Credit, Degree postings, Student Groups would cause the system to generate a new report with updated values shown. For questions in regard to the degree progress report, please send an email to degree.audit@nyu.edu.

Use the scroll bar on the right to view this report from top to bottom.

Reading the Degree Progress

The screenshot shows the 'My Academic Requirements' page. At the top, it says 'New York University | Undergraduate'. Below that, it states 'This report last generated on 09/07/2011 12:25PM'. There are two buttons: 'collapse all' and 'expand all'. At the bottom, there are two status indicators: a green checkmark for 'Taken' and a yellow diamond for 'In Progress'. Callouts explain: 'Report was generated on this date/time' points to the generation date; 'Collapse or expand all Requirements' points to the buttons; and 'Icons indicate status of class shown' points to the 'Taken' and 'In Progress' indicators.

Grade Status will include:

Taken indicates the student has completed a course

In Progress indicates the student is currently enrolled in a class or has not been given a grade yet.

* Note: If a student is currently enrolled for a class the system will assume the student will successfully complete this part of the requirement and it will be shown as “in progress” and that part of the rule will be satisfied.

Each requirement will provide a description and notification if it has been satisfied or not satisfied. It will also detail how many units (credits) are required to satisfy this requirement, how many have been taken, and what is still needed. If requirement is satisfied the arrow will be shown as example below. To view the information contained under a rule which has been satisfied, click on the arrow to expand and read additional information.
